Oceania Academy Listening and Sharing session

Learning to sit side by side on the same park bench: nurturing therapeutic interactions for paediatric chronic pain

Join us in our free listening and sharing session

4.30pm 25th November 2026, Australian EST

This interactive AusACPDM Listening and Sharing session will be about:

Navigating everyday therapeutic interactions with children experiencing chronic pain, and their parents, and why this is important to have on your radar as a health professional! We will discuss paediatric chronic pain in the context of providing healthcare to children with disabilities, new evidence regarding the importance of nurturing therapeutic relationships, and everyday actionable steps you can implement as a health professional. This session will be interactive, with the aim to empower health professionals working with a range of children experiencing chronic pain, across community and tertiary settings.

This session will be of interest to clinicians, researchers, students and people with lived experience.

Presenters include:

Jen Norton (PhD Candidate, University of Technology Sydney; Lecturer in Allied Health, University of the Sunshine Coast)

The session will be facilitated by: Nicola Gardner
